The “Adopt a coral” program at the unconventional 5-star resort Kandima Maldives helps to reforest coral reefs.

An important initiative because the coral banks are essential for marine life and protect the beach lines from erosion. But unfortunately, due to rising sea temperatures, climate phenomena such as El Nino as well as careless divers and overfishing, the coral reefs are largely in poor condition and threatened. Adopting a coral means doing at least a little bit of good for the ocean. The coral adoption program is sustainable in two respects: In addition to the positive impact on the oceans, the “coral parents” receive regular updates about the well-being of their protégé.
